

Instapaper: Friday, Nov. 30th (Instapaper) -
Your Highlight on Location 1487-1489 | Added on Sunday, January 12, 2020 1:01:50 AM

As Charlie Munger famously pointed out, the mind works a bit like a sperm and egg: the first idea gets in and then the mind shuts. Like many other tendencies, this is probably an energy-saving device. Our tendency to settle on first conclusions leads us to accept many erroneous results and cease asking questions; it can be countered with some simple and useful mental routines.